INNOCENT VICTIMS AT THE FOREFRONT OF PROCESS

Fermanagh/South Tyrone DUP candidate Maurice Morrow has stated that the needs of innocent victims must and will be kept to the forefront of the political process.

"For too long victims have been sidelined. It was the DUP who first called for a Victim's Commissioner in 2003 with the appointment of the Interim Commissioner in December 2005.

The DUP will continue to campaign for a comprehensive needs analysis to be carried out which can quantify the number of people who require support and what the main needs are of victims in the community. The issue of funding remains a key priority for victims and the groups which represent them."

Mr Morrow concluded that the needs of innocent victims can never be forgotten and providing for the needs of victims is vital as Northern Ireland seeks to move beyond decades of terrorism and violence.
