McCartney murder, Omagh bomb and Northern Bank robbery 'in cold storage'

By Deborah McAleese
Saturday, 10 January 2009

Three of the biggest crimes in Northern Ireland's recent history are no longer being actively investigated, the head of the Serious Crime Branch has said.

Detective Chief Superintendent Derek Williamson told the Belfast Telegraph it is unlikely anyone will ever be brought to justice for the Omagh bombing, the Northern Bank robbery or the Robert McCartney murder.

But he stressed that the cases will be looked at once again should new investigative opportunities arise.

"It will always be regrettable that we haven't made people amenable ... Have we made mistakes? Yes of course ... We try to do the best we can. Is it a prospect that we could go back over those cases?"

"If new evidence comes to light then yes, we would investigate them. Never say never," Mr Williamson said.

A total of 29 people, including a mother pregnant with unborn twins, were killed during the Real IRA bombing of Omagh.

The only person ever to stand trial for the atrocity was acquitted following a multi-million pound trial.

The bank worker accused of the Northern Bank robbery, the biggest cash robbery in British history at the time — and the three men charged in connection with the murder of Belfast man Robert McCartney — were all also acquitted.

The Northern Bank raid, followed swiftly by Mr McCartney's murder, threatened to unravel the restoration of Stormont because of the reported IRA involvement in both crimes.
Typical and pathetic. In what other supposedly civilised society would this be acceptable? The govt are weak - they know who committed these crimes, but it makes life much easier to bury their heads in the sand. Doesn't say much about our "peaceful" existence when the spectre of the past hangs threateningly over us and prevents justice.

Posted by Steve | 11.01.09, 08:17 GMT

Post a complaint

Please note Name and E-mail are required.

Contact details

* Name:
* Email:

Post

"...But he stressed that the cases will be looked at once again should new investigative opportunities arise."

That must be PSNI-speak for "if someone confesses."

Posted by Jon Hatch | 10.01.09, 14:30 GMT

Post a complaint

Please note Name and E-mail are required.

Contact details

* Name:
* Email:

Post

one can't help but notice that these are all connected with 'republicans'. why no mention of british/loyalist crimes? Hmmmmmm....

Posted by Joe Murray | 10.01.09, 14:26 GMT

Post a complaint

Please note Name and E-mail are required.

Contact details

* Name:
* Email:

Post

Also in this section

- Housing waiting list shoots up
- Justice minister deadline confirmed
- Postal workers to join Royal Mail protest
- SDLP and Sinn Fein battle as Euro-poll moves closer
- Criminals to be tagged

Most popular

1. In Pictures: Oscars 2009 Slumdog cleans up
2. In Pictures: Funny football chants
3. Final images of rail track murder teen Ryan
4. Dying Jade Goody's wedding seals children's future
5. In Pictures and Video: Oscars 2009 Winners
6. Ex-City surgeon struck off for 'barbaric' practices
7. Man United boss Ferguson slams Wenger's transfer policy
8. Jealous farmers 'hired hitman'
9. Goody illness raising awareness about cervical cancer
10. Oscars 2009: Kate Winslet scoops best actress