Brown 'will never forget' thousands of victims in North - The Irish Times - Thu, Jan 29, 2...

Brown 'will never forget' thousands of victims in North

In this section

- Raft of proposals to address Troubles
- Eames says £12,000 is a way to tell families 'sorry for your troubles'
- The Consultative Group on the Past: main recommendations
- 'No rush to judgment' on plans urge Martin and Woodward

FRANK MILLAR, London Editor

HOUSE OF COMMONS: BRITISH PRIME minister Gordon Brown has said he “will never forget the thousands of innocent victims in Northern Ireland” and assured MPs that “no justification” will ever be accepted for terrorist violence.

Mr Brown’s robust remarks came in seeming support for DUP deputy leader Nigel Dodds’s assertion that “there can never be an equivalence between terrorists, on the one hand, and the innocent victims of terror on the other”.

Assuming Mr Brown’s support for that principle, Mr Dodds asked the prime minister: “Does he therefore acknowledge the deep hurt and offence that has been caused by the obnoxious proposal in the Eames-Bradley report...on the past in Northern Ireland, which suggests a £12,000 payment to all relatives of everyone killed, regardless of their status – which effectively does away with the distinction between murderers and those whom they went out to murder and kill?”

Mr Brown replied: “There can be no justification for terrorist violence, and there will be no justification ever given for it.

“The issues raised...by Archbishop Eames and Mr Bradley are very serious indeed, and I understand why one of their recommendations has evoked such controversy in Northern Ireland.”

Mr Brown said his government would consider the report “with great care” and reply in due course. “I believe that some of the recommendations will be acceptable to all parties, such as settling outstanding cases, pushing forward with reconciliation, and having a reconciliation fund that will help different groups to come together so that we can get away from the incidents of the past.”

However, the prime minister went on: “I will never forget the thousands of innocent victims in Northern Ireland. I know that speaks for the whole community in NI when he says that we must respect the fact that innocent people lost their lives, and that should never be forgotten.”

Conservative shadow NI secretary Owen Paterson said: “Those people who carried out vicious acts . . . cannot be put on the same level as their victims – any attempt to do so would be repugnant.”

This article appears in the print edition of the Irish Times

Latest

- 10:30 Education key to ending childhood poverty
- 10:26 H&M profits beat estimates, to hire 6,000 staff
- 10:21 US House passes $825 bn economic stimulus package
- 10:19 French workers strike over economic crisis
- 10:19 Firearms, cannabis resin seized in Dublin
- 10:16 Date set for Hatton, Pacquiao bout
- 10:14 Anglo Irish debt repayments lift bond market
- 10:10 Ferry returns to port after lorry breaks free

Popular Stories

- Most Read
- Most Emailed

- Benitez hints at Keane offer
- Irish economy 'particularly vulnerable' - EU
- Cowen warns of 'financial storm' facing Ireland
- Intel move seen as 'vote of confidence' in Ireland
- Liverpool back to third
- Internet users face shutdown over illegal music downloads
- Downloaders face disconnection following Eircom settlement
- Yeats would be pleased by tourist trail, says Heaney
- Radical new agenda for universities considered
- Shoppers in South pay 51% more for non-grocery goods

Your Vote

- Yes
- No

Results

Do you think the social partnership approach is a prerequisite for economic recovery?

Crossword Club

Today's Interactive Irish Times Crosaire and Simplex crosswords, plus 10 years of crossword archive.
Living with the 'prodigy' tag
Violinist Sarah Chang, who had played with major orchestras and made her first recording by age 10, tells Michael Dervan how she came through the difficult transition to adulthood.

A bright idea
A NEW LOW-COST source of power is just around the corner: electricity from dirt.

Homes in seaside suburbs
Two houses for sale with good Sandycove and Dalkey addresses show how prices have fallen since the boom ended, writes Frances O'Rourke.

Global focus
GLOOMY DOESN'T describe the mood at Davos this year. Funereal comes closer.

Fantasy Six Nations
Sign up and be in with a chance in win a holiday worth €5000 in our free Six Nations fantasy game.

Homes

44 Abington, Malahide, Co. Dublin
Price: €3,800,000
Bedrooms: 7

Jobs

Select your categories
A one-size-fits-all Mercedes coupé that has some hatchback genes