

- Skip
- Skip
- Skip
- Skip
- Skip

Thursday, August 21 2008

Independent.ie

National News

Advanced Search

18° Dublin Hi 18°C / Lo 9°C

Severe Allergies
 'With one kiss, I could kill my husband'
 See Lifestyle

Independent Singles Online Dating
 Take the free compatibility test >

• News

• Business

• Sport

• Entertainment

• Health

• Lifestyle

• Education

• Travel

• Jobs

• Property

• Cars

• PlaceMyAd

• More Services

from the Irish Independent & Sunday Independent

- Breaking News
- National News
- World News
- Today's Paper
- Newspapers
- Opinion
- Farming
- Weather
- Most Popular
- Topics

You are here: Home > National News

A monument to compromise

Omagh support body did not want a part in a Sinn Fein-tainted event, writes Ruth Dudley Edwards

Share • Print
 • Email

By Ruth Dudley Edwards
Sunday August 17 2008

THERE'S been much lamentation by well-meaning people about the refusal of the Omagh Support and Self Help Group (OSSHG) to attend the 10th anniversary commemoration organised by Omagh District Council. Was this not a time for standing together as a community, they cry. For inclusiveness?

Also in National News

- I love the night light
- Employees 'shocked and devastated' as two flagship companies are hit by shutdown gloom
- Heartless burglars ransack bedroom of missing teenager

OK. Here's the main reason why they stayed away: the council has 21 members, 10 of whom -- including the chairman -- are Sinn Fein. Consider what flowed from that.

The council has been extremely coy about mentioning that republicans had anything to do with the bomb. When plans were being made for a new garden of remembrance, they did not want to have anywhere in it the OSSHG plaque: "To honour and remember 31 [29 and unborn twins] people murdered and hundreds injured from three nations by a dissident republican terrorist car bomb."

In order to reach an agreement about what they modishly term "the narrative" for the garden, the council set up an Independent Facilitation team. The chair was the Presbyterian saint Dr John Dunlop, the Quaker woman was little-known, the priest appointed was the radical Jesuit Brian Lennon -- loathed by Orangemen for his years backing the activists of the Garvaghy Road in blocking a parade from Drumcree church.

Dunlop being a Solomon for our times, after only 80 meetings with interested parties, a compromise was proffered and accepted by the council. The memorial at the bomb site mentions an "act of terror"; that on the street wall at the garden speaks of the bomb; four of the five sections within the garden say nothing contentious; and the fifth includes and attributes to the OSSHG the unhelpful words about the bombers.

The OSSHG stays peeved about this white-washing.

The council decided on having a grand memorial, so the garden of remembrance is now a "garden of light", which has a "heliostat" tracking the sun and pouring a beam of sunlight onto 31 mirrors on tall poles which then carry the light to an enormous sculpture at the bomb site containing a crystal heart. "We had a little garden where we could sit and be melancholy," said one widower. "What's there now is a tourist attraction."

The families knew this garden would be opened on Friday by the Sinn Fein council chairman, who, along with Deputy First Minister Martin McGuinness, laid wreaths to victims of republicanism. Oddly enough, many people did not want to witness apologists for the IRA acting as if they'd spent their lives being peace activists.

What's more, the OSSHG deeply resents the refusal of McGuinness or any other Sinn Fein leader to ask their supporters to help the PSNI or the gardai nail the Omagh bombers. So laying wreaths seems like the rankest of rank hypocrisy.

What was more, for the last few years the OSSHG has had a little inter-denominational ceremony every year on the Sunday nearest the anniversary. The council wanted them to give this up and join with the big event on the actual day. Since the OSSHG didn't trust the council, they refused, and will go ahead as usual today.

The council apparently urged the clergy who annually had attended the families' service to choose the Friday instead. In the end, the clergy agreed to attend both.

It was not just the OSSHG families who stayed away. The council expected 10,000 at the Friday event: there were perhaps 800, of whom my Omagh friend told me at least 100 were council employees. Quite a few republicans also boycotted the ceremony because there were police on the platform. The excuse for the poor turn-out is that the weather was atrocious and it was a weekday, but the evidence suggests it's far more to do with the Sinn Fein connection. Our poor Taoiseach was there, along with McGuinness; Shaun Woodward, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland; and Jeffrey Donaldson, a junior minister standing in for Peter Robinson. There was a lot of ersatz Celticy peace stuff and some good poetry and bible readings, but essentially the ceremony was damp. And a squib.

- Ruth Dudley Edwards

- Teenager survives spinal surgery only to die from MRSA
- Eircom loses contract to operate 999 service

National News Home

Independent.ie Web

Affordable Car Advertising ... Finally!
Sell Your Car for Only €9.99

Advertiser Links

LoadzaJobs.ie
Register your interest and upload your C.V
www.loadzajobs.ie

Propertynews.com
Irelands property finder.
www.propertynews.com

News National News World News Sport 10:54

High-

profile
 republican acquitted of fraud offences
10:48A Wear plans €10m expansion into UK
07:59Govt urged to set up watch-list of at-risk companies
07:51Woman considers legal action over son's MRSA death
07:47Thousands hit by card-skimming operation in Galway

more breaking news

Game over
 What happens when Olympics leave town

- The winning formula
 Hi-tech kit helping athletes shatter records

- Cross examination

Share

- Print
- Email

- Lock down

- Rising gun crime means curfews in US cities

- Bear trap

- How the Russians stole a march on the west

Sponsored Links

Teachers Building Society

Mortgages for Teachers. Get a decision in principle online today. www.teachersbs.co.uk

Rescue.it Business Financial Advice

Rescue.it is a unique advice service. We work closely with businesses with restricted cash flows to find workable solutions. www.rescue.it

Problem Getting a Mortgage?

Mortgages Up to 85% property value. Bad credit, self cert, Fast Offer. www.grosvenor-finance.co.uk